A DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

What a Family Physician Says About the Headache.

How People May Keep the Fiend at Bay—Words of Wisdom for Suffering Men and Women.

["Pipsey Potts" in Arthur's Magazine.]

There are a great many kinds of headaches. There are various causes for them. Perhaps the most common kinds are the sick headache and a headache which comes from an unequal circulation of the blood. The first comes from an overburdened system, which is obliged to call a halt and relieve itself. There is generally a tendency to vomit and a pain in some part of the head, frequently the left side. The pain is sometimes almost unendurable. This is caused by there being too much bile in the system; the bile has been manufactured too rapidly or has not been worked out of the system fast enough by active exercise. Women who are subject to spells of the sick headache are those who are confined in-doors too much; their lives are monotonous and they eat too heartily of food too solid and perhaps not digestible, or perhaps they eat between meals, taking a bite off the piece they spread for the children, or they take a handful of nuts or an apple or a drink of cold coffee.

Persons who have sick headache, as a rule, eat too much and exercise too little. They have cold feet and they are constipated. Too often they are people who are low-spirited, morbid, subject to the "blues," sensitive; the kind who "take a good cry;" persons who take offense easily; whose love of approbativeness is large; who know nothing of that ease and comfort that goes with "a quiet heart." They are apt to indulge in moods—to be away up in the clouds, delighted, exalted, animated, or away down in the mire, despondent, sorrowing, and gloomy.

Then there is a headache that comes from tight boots and shoes, tight lacing, or a garment that binds and annoys some part of the body. If from any of these causes our verdict would be "Serves 'em right."

The headache common among young persons comes from derangement of the digestion, and the subjects of it are often addicted either to sedentary occupations or to balls, theaters, evening concerts, and other dissipations, extending far into the hours of the night. The cure is so evident that it need not be insisted upon.

The headache in older persons is often caused by a flow of blood to the head, called vertigo, and is threatened apoplexy. Restricted diet, with moderate exercise, will usually bring about a cure unless there is positive organic disease.

A nervous headache, brought on by overwork, grief, loss of sleep and like causes, is relieved by quietude, gentle rubbing of pitying hands or the friction brush, and by applying a cloth dipped in hot water and quickly wrung out on the back of the neck. The feet above the ankles should be in moderately hot water at the same time. The pain is greatly lessened by these simultaneous applications.

Ministers are apt to suffer very much from the tired or nervous headache. Up above the congregation the poor men get all the heat and bad air which rises, though they may escape the carbonic acid gas which settles in the pews. After the day's work how apt they are to drop into sleep and sleep it off. Better to have taken a brisk walk and time enough to get pure air into the circulation.

The nerve-power varies, like the pressure of steam, so many pounds to the square inch, though it cannot be regulated the same way. Our supply is weak in the morning; we cannot do much hard work before breakfast. We grow stronger toward noon; we go up with the sun; after 2 o'clock we begin to wane. Work done late at night is a greater tax upon the life than that done at noon. It is not right to turn night into day; it does not answer the purpose. There is a wonderful power in the light—a wonderful virtue in the sun's rays.

Brain-work is more exhaustive and uses up the nerve-power faster than any sort of manual labor. And the worst of it is that the brain is not apt to complain of nervous exhaustion. Busy brain-workers need recreation and rest, and they are wise if they remember it and do not defer it too long.

And there is refreshment in lying down and relaxing every muscle, even if one does not sleep. Let tired housewives, overworked mothers, teachers, the working man, and man of business, remember this.

Stimulants are a great mistake. They are the whip and the spur to the jaded horse. They make the nerves start up suddenly and in anger, only to run a little while.

Habitual exercise may be regarded as the great specific for all kinds of aches, ailments, loss of nervous energy, and exhaustion.

The Boom.

[William Washburn.]

"What is it that supports this town?" I asked my western friend. "Have you any mines?"

"Oh, no; no mines. Something more solid than that."

"Any manufactures?"

"Oh, no."

"Good farming land?"

"Nothing but dogtowns."

"What is it, then, that keeps all these hotels, newspapers, theater pumper politicians and club houses going?"

"Well," he replied, cutting off a huge quid from my roll of tobacco, "I reckon you're a stranger. What is it supports the government? It's the same thing that supports our town. It's the boom, sir; the boom."

A Long Felt Want.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Smith—I've got into a new business. I'm a waker-up.

Jones—What in the world is that?

Smith—Some days ago I advertised to go around and wake up servant girls in the morning.

Jones—Well, well; and how are you succeeding?

Smith—I have had 35,000 applications and they are still coming in at the rate of 1,000 an hour. The job is too big. Guess I'll have to give it up.

Ice Lumps and Bills.

[Philadelphia Call.]

Iceman—Well, as to non-conductors of heat, wool cloth is very good, but paper does first-rate.

Consumer—Paper?

Iceman—Yes; wrap the ice up in it.

Consumer—Well, when you leave your lump, just, please, wrap it in the bill.

The Editor.

A good editor must always be in his write mind.—Merchant Traveler. And have a sort of pen-chant for work.—South and West. And live within his ink-come.—Jewish Messenger.

Philadelphia Call: Wages are only 10 cents a day in China. How true it is that the wages of Ah Sin is death—by starvation.

POLITICS A DIRTY SCHOOL.

Canadian politics are coming to be a very dirty school. In connection with the recent local election in Halifax, between the new premier—Mr. W. S. Fielding, who was elected over his opponent, Mr. Payzant—some astounding revelations were made, in which politicians on both sides do not appear to advantage or credit to themselves or their country. So far as can be ascertained, Mr. Fielding, who is a leading journalist, and reported to be a thoroughly upright, honest, conscientious man—as all of his profession ought to be—undertook the task of reorganizing a cabinet for Nova Scotia. In his mission he succeeded. He had to vacate his seat and run for re-election. The fact then came to light that Sir Charles Tupper arranged with leading Liberals that if Mr. Stair, Conservative, was allowed to enter the Commons unopposed in a bye election, his party would not oppose either Mr. Pipes, the late premier, or Mr. Fielding. Mr. A. G. Jones, a member of the Mackenzie Cabinet, was a party to this bargain. On Mr. Fielding presenting himself to the electorate of Halifax he was stoutly opposed. Mr. Jones denounced the oppositien as a breach of faith.

The Halifax Herald revealed the fact that Sir Charles' friends had promised Mr. Jones, in consideration of Mr. Stair being returned without a contest, to see to it that the molasses tariff was altered in his interests, Mr. Jones being a West India trader and also a stockholder in the local sugar refinery. The promise was kept, or, as the Herald puts it, the "molasses duties have been rectified to suit his wishes," and "neither the Liberal-Conservative party nor any member of it is under any further obligation to either Mr. Jones or Mr. Fielding in the matter." Mr. Jones did not deny that the molasses compact was made and carried out, but he insists that it was only a part of the original agreement, and that the Conservatives were still in honor bound to let Mr. Fielding go in unopposed.

This, however, is not the first time concessions have been granted in the framing of the tariff. It is a well known fact that the principal implement manufacturers of Ontario are Liberals. Early in 1883, when they were pressing Sir Leonard for an increase in the duty on their wares, he told them that the Northwest settler was "already heavily encumbered." But a few days afterwards he raised the duty from 25 to 35 per cent. Most of them had supported Sir John and protection in 1882, while, as of old, throwing their influence in local elections for Mr. Mowat. It struck everybody as strange that after refusing to increase the duty, Sir Leonard should have suddenly decided that the demand of these Reform manufacturers was a perfectly reasonable one and that the "already heavily encumbered" settler should be still further burdened in order that a practical monopoly in the Northwest might be established on their behalf. It was charged at the time, and has never been denied since, that the increase in the duty was the consideration for which the Government obtained the support of the implement makers for Mr. Meredith. Thus it is that the outlaying Provinces are compelled to pay tribute to these manufacturers by way of a bounty for their desertion to the Conservative camp in local as well as in Dominion politics. At first sight it was hard to believe that the Government could have dared to enter into such an infamous arrangement; but after this molasses revelation and confession in Halifax, what concessions will our politicians not grant in order to either retain, or attain, to power!

NO, THANK YOU.

Some enterprising journalist or politician has resuscitated the exploded scheme for bringing the British West Indies into the Canadian Confederacy. A similar project was mooted in the political booming days of 1865-7. A special Ambassador, in the person of the Hon. William Macdougall, was sent to Jamaica and the other Islands with the view of sounding the people on the subject and at the same time establish closer trade relations with them; but though he conducted the negotiations with his usual ability, his mission was a failure. A contemporary asks:

"What have the British West Indies in common with the Dominion? True we buy their sugar and send them fish and lumber, but politically and geographically they have no more connection or affiliation with this country than the Sandwich Islands, with which British Columbia carries on a small trade. In their present position as Crown colonists their duties are nominal and they enjoy the free exchange of their products for British goods."

Jamaica has grown tired of being a Crown colony and has been agitating for three or four years for the establishment of responsible government. It may be that in their apparently hopeless struggle, her local politicians have imagined that the incorporation of the island with the Dominion would remove all the evils inherent to the bib-and-tucker system pursued by the Colonial office. If so, they are mistaken. Confederation is no happy family. Every province is fighting for its own hand. The maritime provinces are much more interested in New England than in the present or future of Ontario. Quebec is engaged in a perpetual contest with Ontario over jealousies growing out of the difference in race and creed.

Manitoba and the great Northwest, as well as British Columbia, has scarcely anything in common with the rest of the Dominion. Their natural allies and markets being those across the lines with whom we hold much in affinity, commercially speaking. Of partners we already have a sufficiency, and the relations are not by any means the happiest that could be desired. It will require the greatest care and the wisest statesmanship on the part of Sir John Macdonald or Mr. Blake to keep the present members of Confederation together for another decade, while the ultimate collapse of the Union and dispersion of the Provinces is a foregone conclusion in the mind of every intelligent man. The British West Indies had better form a confederation of their own, or, bettor still, remain as they are. Our advice to them is founded on practical experience.

BRITAIN AND THE COLONIES.

The relations existing between Britain and the Colonies are engaging considerable attention at present, both at home and abroad. By several eminent writers, who are discussing the matter, it is claimed that Great Britain to-day does not possess the friendship of one single European power, and that the tie binding the colonies to the Empire is unsatisfactory and uncertain. Under these circumstances they suggest a closer union of the Anglo-Saxon family, and the formation of a great English-speaking confederation, in which could be included not only England and her colonies, but the United States. The confederacy, they say, would be a defensive association, allowing the fullest liberty of legislative action to its members, and changing in no respect the form of government under which they now exist. These writers believe the suggested union would be advantageous to both Great Britain and the States, besides which it would promote the great cause of human liberty, and would, by the very strength of the confederation, tend to prevent war and unnecessary bloodshed. The idea is a very pretty one, but it is not likely to bear fruit in our day. The trouble is that there would be two parties to such a bargain, and it is not likely that either would approve of it.

There is not a continent in the world in which England and France are not at loggerheads. In America it is over the French coast of Newfoundland troubles; in Africa, over Egypt and Madagascar; in Australia, over the convict settlements of New Caledonia; in Asia, over China, in which England has colonies, and with which she has an extremely large trade. In South Africa, England has fallen foul of Bismarck, who has plented a colony at Angra Pequena; while in Asia she is ever on the watch against a Russian march upon India. In short, Britain's colonies are a source of weakness rather than of strength, nor is it easy to see how her position would be bettered by imperial federation, even granting it to be feasible.

CANNIBALISM IN CANADA.

The revolting stories now being told of cannibalism by the Greely expedition party has had frequent parallels in Canada, as the following facts will illustrate: In 1828 the brig Granicus, from Quebec for the Cove of Cork, was wrecked near East Point on Anticosti. The passengers and crew, 26 in number, failed to find the provision depots and took shelter in an empty hut at Fox Cove. This was in November. In the summer when the Government schooner called at the island for the purpose of landing lighthouse supplies, the wreck was discovered and search made for the people. Every soul had perished. The rafters of the hut hung with human limbs and human bones in a pot swung over the ashes of a long extinct fire, told the tale. Of the corpses found in this shambles, only one was unmutilated. It was that of B. Harrington, who had left a pencilled note asking "all good Christians" to send a sum of money which he had hidden in his hammock to his mother, Mary Harrington, Barrack street. The bodies of two men were found some distance away, and it was supposed that they had wandered off to escape the frightful scenes. Archbishop Tache, of Manitoba, in his "Esquisse sur le Nord-Ouest de l'Amerique," relates that in the winter of 1840-41 the Hudson's Bay agent at Fort Good Hope, in the Mackenzie river region, was compelled to abandon the post in order to obtain supplies, leaving behind an employe named St. Arnand and his family. A band of Indians, the Peaux de Lievres, were clamoring at the gate for food. St. Arnand, who had nothing to give them, barricaded the fort and with his wife and children contrived to subsist until relief came upon the parchment that served as window panes and upon scraps of rope and leather. Meanwhile the Indians were driven by the pangs of hunger to cannibalism. Ninety of the band were devoured. Two Hudson's Bay officers who arrived at the post were killed by the squaws and their remains distributed among the band.

AS IT SHOULD BE.

The judgment rendered by Mr. Justice Gray yesterday in the Crowther vs. Beaven case, is one of great importance, not only to the city of Victoria, but to all places where encroachments on the streets, or other properties, of municipalities exists. The question involved presumed legal rights, which Mr. Justice Gray's decision rightly nullifies. We understand there are many cases within the limits of the corporation, of parties trespassing on lands not their own. It is to be hoped that the proper authorities will at once take proper steps to have all such obstructions removed. No private individual would allow his rights to be interfered with, and we trust our city fathers will be animated by a similar spirit.

ANNEXATION OF JAMAICA.

An Ottawa dispatch says: Private advice received from England by the Dominion Government shows that the suggested entrance of Jamaica into the Dominion is not an idle story. Negotiations looking in that direction have been privately carried on for some time past. The underlying incentive is to find another permanent market for Jamaica sugar. The matter in all likelihood will be brought before the Jamaica Legislature and the Dominion Parliament at the coming session.

TELEGRAPHIC.

THE COMMERCIAL ASPECT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—A London special cable on the Franco-Chinese war states that the effect is most disastrous to trade. Business is flat and the markets are all depressed. The only exchange favorably affected was Lloyd's, which was crowded with ship owners throughout the day. None of the existing policies included war risks, hence a lively business was done in war premiums, which were quoted at from a half crown to 5s advance, or of an eighth to a quarter per cent. This, however, was only on goods strictly not contraband of war. On all cargoes of arms, saltpetre, or other similar munitions, a premium of 10s per £100 was charged. There was considerable bargaining as to other goods, not absolutely war material, but useful to the belligerents. Insurers claim that until France has actually declared war against China, and given the usual notice to the neutral powers, she cannot confiscate gobds under a neutral flag, and if any such are destroyed there would be good ground for a claim against France. The feeling of German houses here, many of which do a large eastern trade, is that the French are taking literally Bismarck's advice to blaze away at the Chinese without meddling with the treaty governments. It is reported that Bismarck has wanted France to conduct operations so as not to interfere with neutral commerce.

CANADIANS FOR THE NILE.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 27.—The Governor General has been ordered by the home government to secure the services of 600 Canadian voyagers to go up the Nile for the relief of Gen. Gordon at Khartoum. The class required are those whose constant occupation has been running timber on Canadian rivers. They are needed to take flat-bottomed boats up the Nile, and in making portages around the rapids, and will sail from Quebec on Sept. 15th. It is intended to take 300 men from Ottawa district and the remainder from the Quebec and St. Maurice region. Already applications are rushing in.

Gordon. Preference will be given to officers who served under Wolseley in the Red river expedition. Advertisements, calling for volunteers will be issued at once.

ANOTHER WATER WORKS OFFER.

A Warm Welcome—The "Times" and the Celestials—Police Court Intelligence.

VICTORIA BANKS.

Crowther vs. Beaven.

In this case Judge Gray yesterday rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff for $50 damages and costs. The case was a dispute concerning the boundary line between lots 398 and 399. In 1880 the Legislature passed an act to make valid and binding a new official map or survey of the city of Victoria, and under the provisions of the map, so legalized, the defendant took four feet of the ground hitherto held and enjoyed as part of 398, because by that new plan it fell within 399, to which he had an indefeasible title, and left the owner of 398 to recoup himself by taking his four feet from Quadra street, which by the new plan was alleged to be narrowed four feet. Judge Gray thought that this was a mistake, as their was nothing whatever in the act to extend the right of appropriation, which for the public interest is given to the corporation relative to the streets, to private persons for their own purposes. The defendant had an indefeasible title to 399, but it must be the 399 he purchased and took and held at the time the indefeasible title was given, not what he now assumes to be 399. The alterations made by the new map, whatever they might be, were only legalized as to the public streets, subject to the provisions of the acts named, not as to private properties between private individuals. Any other construction would lead to wholesale spoilation, and create a war of litigation that would make every man and woman in the city a plaintiff or defendant.

A Charge of Vagrancy.

George Sinclair was charged this morning with being a vagrant. Officer Stuart deposed that he knew the prisoner to be an idle person, frequenting a low den, and not engaged in any work. Prisoner stated that when the officer saw him in the den he was in company with two business men from Government street. Officer Stuart said the prisoner stated he was a member of the Union Club of this city. The prisoner stated that he might have said that in a joke. Supt. Bloomfield gave evidence as to his character during the past twelve months, and the numerous complaints made about him. Last night he had been called on by a respectable citizen, who said he thought his daughter was in Mrs. Taylor's den, for immoral purposes. He went there and found the girl, the prisoner, and others. Judge Pemberton convicted the prisoner and ordered him to appear on Monday for sentence.

The "Times" and the Chinese.

The Portland Evening Chronicle of Monday says: "The British Columbia papers are agitating the Chinese question. The Victoria TIMES, the leading paper in Victoria, is pointing out to its readers the curse of the Chinese hordes which are now seeking the shores of the Province and is calling for the passage of a law checking this unrestricted Chinese immigration. Let those in the East who think the Pacific Coast people are prejudiced in the matter come and see for themselves. Let them see the Heathen Chinee as we see them, let them see the miserable condition of these creatures in Portland and let them express themselves. If he is desirous of affiliating with the race after he has seen all this, this one privilege will not be denied him, but even then we must refuse him a hearing on the Chinese question, but one upon which our people render but one verdict; there is a place for Chinese, but it's not in a civilized community."

An Irate Husband.

John Nangle exhibited a badly scratched up face in court this morning. He charged Henry Czarski, proprietor of a saloon at the corner of View and Douglas streets, with having committed an assault on Saturday last. It appeared from the evidence that the complainant and one or two others were getting a drink in the hotel and he sat down beside the defendant's wife. Defendant objected to this, and ordered Nangle to leave, and on his objecting assaulted him, scratching his face and kicking him. The defendant was fined $20, or two month's imprisonment.

The Agricultural Hall.

At the City Council meeting last night the clerk stated that an injunction had been served to stop work on the hall at Beacon Hill. Councilors Gowen and J. Robertson moved that the city solicitor be instructed to defend the suit. Councilor Wriglesworth supported the motion, which Councilor Boyd wished withdrawn. The motion was eventually carried.

A Good Suggestion.

At Council meeting last night Councilor Wriglesworth called attention to the state of the sidewalks in some of the places where contractors had been erecting buildings. They did not replace the walks properly, and should be summoned. Mayor Carey said the Chief of Police had been instructed in the matter.

For Portland.

Bark Jupiter, Captain Jones, which is now discharging freight here, will shortly leave for Portland, Oregon, with some freight, which she has on board for that place. After discharging there she will load for her return trip.

Yosemite's Freight.

Steamer Yosemite brought down 1,000 cases of salmon from Laidlaw's cannery for the bark Harvest Home; also nine horses, nine bales of furs and a large amount of general freight.

The Revenue By-law.

The motion for the first reading of the Revenue by-law was carried last night in Council meeting by a vote of four to two.

$25,000 Better.

It is rumored on the streets to-day that a responsible city capitalist has gone $25,000 better for the city water works, making the price now offered $300,000. Next!

FINANCIAL MATTERS.

Bank of British Columbia Stock—How Other Banks Stand—The Latest Quotations.

The financial statement of the Canadian banks for July has just appeared, as well as that of the Dominion Government. As a whole a considerable shrinkage in business during the month is shown. The note circulation declined over a million and a half, while general deposits, interest bearing and on demand, have diminished to the extent of $3,519,017. Dominion Government deposits on demand have also been reduced about $1,400,000, and it is observed that the Dominion deposits bearing interest have been almost wholly withdrawn from the banks. The Federal Government has no money to loan just now to banks or anybody else. The deposits on demand are drawn upon from day to day. As a result of the last English loan, the indebtedness of the Government to the banks has been reduced about from $6,703,374 to $2,215,492, leaving a net balance of about $2,000,000 in the Government's favor. Such a large reduction in deposits at this season of the year looks extraordinary. The spring shipments of lumber and other products have increased the balances due from British and foreign banks. The specie and Dominion note reserves have been strengthened during the month, loans on stocks and bonds have slightly increased, and there has been a to commercial corporations. Current loans and advances to the public have declined to the extent of $3,389,689, while the aggregate amount of overdue debts has increased $294,128. The business transacted by the banks continues small, as is usually the case at this season of the year. They seem to be holding their surplus funds for the movement of the crops, and are therefore not seeking business. Money is likely to rule low. The crops are abundant, and prices will probably be lower than for some years, so favorable is the yield in all wheat-growing countries. Money on call is firm, banks showing no disposition to make loans on collateral under 6½ per cent. On bonds, debentures, and the like, the quotations are 5 to 5½ per cent. Time loans rule at 6½ to 7 per cent. There is a moderate amount of commercial paper offering. A 1 is discounted at 6½, but ordinary to good is still quoted at 7 to 7½ per cent.

SLIGHT DECLINE IN LOANS

Sterling exchange is very quiet. Sixty day bills between banks are 108⅜, and across the counter 108⅝, demand bills 108⅝ between banks and 108⅞ to 109 across the counter. Gold drafts on New York are 1-16 discount to par between banks, and ⅛ premium across the counter.

Province of British Columbia 1894 6 per cents were quoted in London on the 14th inst. at 113½, and July 1907 6 per cents at 121.

Bank of British Columbia stocks were quoted at 23, or £3 premium on the £20 paid up shares. The new stock, issued at 2 per cent premium, but on which only 10s in the pound has been paid, was quoted at £11 10s. Stockholders are liable for a further call of 10s on each share in this stock. Bank of British North America was quoted at 58. Each share of this bank is £50, and is fully paid up.

A WARM WELCOME.

Hospitalities Extended to the Rev. Donald Fraser.

The success of the social tea meeting given last night in the First Presbyterian church has been very gratifying to the promoters of the meeting, and pleasing to Rev. Mr. Fraser, the pastor, to welcome whom the social was given. At 7:30 tea was served in the school-room, where several tables had been spread. Great credit is due the ladies of the church and congregation who voluntarily supplied an abundance of refreshments. After tea an adjournment was made to the lecture room, and it was then seen that there were enough present to completely fill the large room. There were in attendance Rev. Mr. Jamieson, one of the pioneer missionaries; Rev. Mr. Percival, of the Methodist church; Rev. Mr. Stevens, of St. Andrews, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Jamieson, made some interesting remarks about the number of Presbyterian ministers who had arrived in the Province, and the few who at present remain. He expressed a hope that Rev. Mr. Fraser would remain permanently in the Province. The following programme was successfully rendered:

TEXADA MINES.

An Extensive and Most Valuable Iron Property.

ON THE GULF OF GEORGIA.

Description of the Immense Furnaces and Machinery The Irondale Works.

AN IMMENSE BONANZA.

The large furnace of the Puget Sound Iron Company is situated at Irondale, about six miles from Port Townsend, W. T. The present company purchased their valuable and extensive iron mine from parties in British Columbia who then parted with an immense and truly rich bonanza. The present company own at Irondale, where the furnace is, some fourteen acres of land bordering the bay, besides 5000 acres of timber land surrounding. They have a wharf 450 feet long, reaching to 30 feet of water at low tide. Also a fine dwelling for the superintendent, a store, a hotel, and ample accommodations for the hands. The capital stock of the company is $500,000. The following are the officers: J. A. Paxton, president; A. Halsey, secretary; C. H. Simpkins, treasurer; J. L. Smith, superintendent; E. C. Darley, of St. Louis, mechanical engineer, is now supervising the alterations and the remodeling of the works, which will cost $100,000. He is now making arrangements for running on a far more extensive scale than formerly. He brought his own men who thoroughly understand their work. In 1882 a small experimental furnace was built, and in the spring of 1883 one of larger capacity was erected, but, owing to the lightness of the machinery used, and the bad assortment in the selection of the ores, and incompetence, neither proved a success. At least, they did not come up to the expectations of the company. Now the company is

REBUILDING THE FURNACE,

Which will be of the following dimensions: Height, 50 feet; diameter of bosh, ten feet three inches; diameter of hearth, five feet, with five four-inch diameter tuyers, placed four feet six inches high. The hearth is incased in a three-inch cast iron water block, with water coil through the same. The tuyers are placed in water coil arches. The bosh will have three sets of water blocks between tuyers and mantle, with one inch heavy gas pipe water coils in each row of blocks. The furnace is known as a closed-top furnace, with bell and hopper, with patent seal to prevent any escape of waste gas. It will require 80,000 gallons of water every 24 hours to keep the brick-work in the bosh and hearth cool. Including what is required for steam and other purposes, the total amount necessary will be 125,000 gallons every day. The hot oven for heating the blast has six bed-pipe, with ten syphon or W pipe on each bed, making a total of 60 syphon or W pipes, giving 3,600 feet of heating surface, which will heat the blast before going into the furnace to 1,000 degrees, and there is required 8,000 cubic feet of air or blast every minute. First the pipes are all encased in fire-brick lining, requiring 50,000 fire and 70,000 red brick. The oven is 30 feet long, 13 feet wide and 30 feet high, the whole being bound together with railroad iron for the whole height, requiring at the sides and ends twenty binders. The combustion chamber runs the full length of the oven, under the bed pipe, and is five feet wide and seven feet high, with a large gas port between each bed pipe for the purpose of conveying heat

FROM THE COMBUSTION CHAMBER

Around the syphon or U pipe. The oven is fired and blast heated by the waste gas conveyed by a gas down-take from the top of the furnace to the combustion chamber. The cold blast is forced from the engine into ovens, where it is heated; then it is conveyed through tuyers into furnace. The new engine, which is vertical, is known as the Wimer blowing engine, and is of an entirely new pattern, built by the Wimer Machine Works Co., Lebanon, Pa. The steam cylinder is thirty inches in diameter with a 48-inch stroke. The blowing cylinder is 72 inches in diameter, and has a 48-inch stroke. The engine has two fly-wheels of 24 tons each, and are each 16 feet in diameter. The fly-wheel shaft is of steel and is fourteen inches in diameter. The engine is capable of blowing 10,000 cubic feet of air per minute, at a pressure of ten pounds per square inch, but will only require to blow 8,000 cubic feet per minute, at a pressure of five pounds to the square inch. The blast passes from the engine into an air receiver, five feet in diameter and forty feet long, before going to the hot oven. There are four boilers set in two batteries, two in one battery, 36 inches in diameter and 32 feet long, with one 14-inch flue in each boiler. The other boiler has two, 42 inches in diameter and 32 feet long, with two 13-inch flues in each boiler. Each boiler has a mud drum, 24 inches in diameter and 8 feet long. The steam drum is 30 inches in diameter and 7 feet long. The boilers are set so one or both batteries can be used at the same time. The boilers are fired same as the hot oven by waste gas from the furnace. The gas is brought

THE TOP OF THE FURNACE,

In a wrought-iron down-take, 48 inches in diameter, lined with fire-brick, to an underground gas flue, 5 feet by 6 feet, running to heat the oven and boilers. The gas is regulated in the hot oven and boilers by large gas burners, which are arranged to admit suitable quantities of air with the gas for proper combustion. The hoisting engine for elevating charcoal, ore and lime-stone to the top of the furnace is a double engine with two 8x10 inch steam cylinders, built by Smith, Beggs & Rankin, St. Louis. This engine operates two cages, each 9 feet square, with a lifting capacity of 4,000 pounds. While one cage is ascending with loaded barrows the other is descending with empty barrows. The hoisting tower through which the cages pass to the top of the furnace is of heavy frame, 12 feet 6 by 22 feet, and 95 feet high, the stock being taken from the stock-house 35 feet below the furnace and on the level with decks. The casting house, in which the furnace stands, is 46 feet wide by 90 feet long, and is 26 high; engine house 43x50 feet and 30 feet high; boiler, 20x40, and 18 feet high; stock-house, 75x70, and 25 feet high. The stock which will be used first is charcoal, made from red fir in pits in the woods surrounding the furnace on the company's property. At present the company has in one pile at the furnace some 650,000 bushels in stock, and it is receiving 5,600 bushels per day. When the furnace blows in, about the last of September, it will use the following materials every 24 hours: Five thousand bushels charcoal, 120,000 pounds of Texada iron ore, 60,000 pounds of Chimacum iron ore, and 20,000 pounds of lime-stone, which will produce forty tons of No. 1 charcoal foundry iron every 24 hours. The company has ores which by the use of a proper mixture of each, will make a Bessemer steel, open hearth steel, iron suitable for boiler and steamship plates, and also car wheel iron. The annual capacity of the furnace is 14,000 gross tons.

THE TEXADA ORE.

The Texada ore comes from Texada Island, situated in the Gulf of Georgia, British Columbia, where the Company is now actively engaged in putting in a new incline and new machinery, so that some 200 tons per day can be mined and shipped in vessels, and unloaded at the company's docks at Irondale. The mine has in sight enought ore to run ten blast furnaces for fifty years. No stripping or dead work being required at all. The ore can be traced from the lower level outcropping to a vertical height of 400 feet, and can work a face of 350 feet. This ore is a black magnetic, containing 64 per cent metalic iron. The Chimacum ore is mined on Chimacum creek, about three miles from the furnace, and contains about 35 per cent metallic iron. The Limestone is brought in vessels from the San Juan Islands, and contains 97 per cent. carbonate of lime. This lime is charged in furnace with ore for the purpose of fluxing the same. The furnace is charged or fed at top. A charge consists of two barrels of charcoal, or forty bushels, and two barrels of ore with a proper amount of lime for flux. This is dumped in hopper on top of bell, then seal is lowered to prevent escaping gas; then bell is lowered allowing charge to drop into furnace. At casting time, which occurs every eight hours, first a bar is driven into the cinder notch and the melted slag or cinder is drawn from off the top of the molten iron; the cinder notch is three feet above the iron notch and after the cinder is all drawn off the notch is filled up; then a bar is driven in iron notch which is on a level with bottom of furnace, allowing the molten iron to run into sand molds or pig beds. Each cast of the furnace will make from 13 to 13½ tons. The company will employ 250 to 300 men altogether this fall, and expect to be in full blast late in September.

THE CHINESE HIGHBINDERS.

Women On the Juries—Three Mongols Who Pretended to Be Actors.

The District Court, which is now in session at Port Townsend, Judge Green officiating on the bench, has four ladies on the trial jury and two on the Grand jury, and they make excellent jurywomen.

The case of the two desperate characters who some time since were arrested for kidnapping three women in Victoria, and also were detected—while carrying them off to Washington Territory for the purpose of selling them into dens of prostitution—was dismissed by the Grand jury.

The trial jury found three Chinese guilty of being illegally in the United States, and Judge Green ordered their immediate return to Victoria, by Deputy U. S. Marshal, who will bring them over on the steamer to-day. The dodge the Chinese took for the purpose of being landed was by making a pretense that they were actors. It afterward transpired that they were laborers, and they were rearrested, tried, and found guilty, when they were ordered to be returned to this city, as aforesaid.

Fay Templeton Company.

The Fay Templeton Opera company appear to-night at the Philharmonic hall for the first time. They play but two evenings. Those who wish to see and hear a really good performance will be pleased with the Templeton company. As before announced, they appear in "Girofle-Girofla."

Cheap Fares Still.

The traveling public are still enjoying cheap rides on the fine steamers which run on the inland waters. To-morrow morning the R. P. Rithet will leave for Nanaimo at 7 o'clock, carrying passengers for 50 cents, and the Amelia will leave at 10 o'clock.

From Nanaimo.

Steamer R. P. Rithet arrived from Nanaimo with the following passengers: D. McRae, A Martin, J A Fraser, J Broadwell, G Sparks, Dr Smith, E Morris, Mrs Percer, Mr Charles, Mrs Northcote, Dr Rowbotham and several others.

The complexion of a lady indicates the state of her health; it always improves after using Peruvian Bitters.

Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll.

Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll, accompanied by Mrs. Ingersoll and two daughters, arrived in the city, per steamer, this afternoon. He was met at the dock by his old time friend, Col. Stephens, U. S. Consul, and other gentlemen, who accompanied him to his quarters. Col. Ingersoll will deliver his great lecture on "Orthodoxy," at the new Royal theater to-night, where, beyond doubt, he will be greeted by a well-filled house, as, at noon to-day a very large number of seats had been taken.

From San Francisco.

Steamer Mexico arrived from the Sound this morning at 5:45 o'clock, and left at noon for San Francisco with the following passengers from Victoria: Louis Delmonico, wife and child, G P Orendorff, J Parker, Webber, E D Langley, Mrs T Brown and two children, Mr Y Ellis and wife, Miss Shettleworth, W H Beatty, G S Millery, P H McKay, Le Yeck Key, Wing Gum Hing.

IN THE CONSERVATORY.

[Earl Marble.]

"But we must return! What will they say!
Yes, I know it's awful nice.
In the window here, from the others away,
With a taste now and then of the ice,
And now and then of—— Oh, you wretch!
It wasn't at all required
That you should illustrate thus with a sketch
The speech that of course you admired.

"No matter how naughty. There you have spoiled
The 'classical Grecian knot'
In which you like my hair to be coiled,
And I really don't know what
Other mischief you haven't done! You're just
Real naughty! You squeeze like a vise!
Why can't you men take something on trust,
And be more dainty and nice!

"There! I'm ready now. What! just one more!
Oh, aren't you a darling tease!
And love me so!—one, two, three, four!
There! come now, dearest, please.
I'm almost afraid of the parlor glare.
When they look at my lips they'll see
The kisses upon them." "No, not there;
But, sweet, in your eyes, maybe!"

A STROKE OF LIGHTNING.

It Visited Bill Nye While Listening to a Concert.

[Denver Opinion.]

Last week we went up to the Coliseum at Minneapolis to hear Theodore Thomas' orchestra, the Wagner trio and Christine Nilsson. The Coliseum is a large rink just out of Minneapolis on the road between that city and St. Paul. It can seat 4,000 people comfortably, but the management like to wedge 4,500 people in there on a warm day and then watch the perspiration trickle out through the clapboards on the outside. On the closing afternoon, during the matinee performance, the building was struck by lightning and a hole knocked out of the Corinthian duplex that surmounts the oblique portcullis on the off side. The reader will see at once the location of the bolt. The lightning struck the flag-staff, ran down the leg of a man who was repairing the electric light, took a chew of his tobacco, turned his boot wrong side out and induced him to change his sock, toyed with a chilblain, wrenched out a soft corn and roguishly put it in his ear, then ran down the electric light wire, a part of it filling an engagement in the Coliseum and the balance following the wire to the depot, where it made double-pointed toothpicks of a pole fifty feet high. All this was done very briefly.

Those who have seen lightning toy with a cottonwood tree know that the fluid makes a specialty of it at once and in a brief manner. The lightning in this case broke the glass in the skylight, and deposited the broken fragments on a half-dozen parquette chairs that were empty because the speculators who owned them couldn't get but $50 apiece, and were waiting for a man to mortgage his residence and sell a team. He couldn't make the transfer in time for a matinee, so the seats were vacant when the lightning struck.

The immediate and previous fluid then shot athwart the auditorium in the direction of the platform, where it nearly frightened to death a large chorus of children. Women fainted, ticket speculators fell $2 on desirable seats, and strong men coughed up a clove. The scene beggared description. I intended to have said that before, but forgot it. Theodore Thomas drew a full breath, and Christine Nilsson drew her salary. Two thousand strong men thought of their wasted lives, and 2,000 women felt for their back hair to see if it was still there. I say, therefore, without successful contradiction, that the scene beggared description.

A World in Pawn.

[Federal Australian.]

The idea of the whole globe being hypothecated by countless millions of debtors to a calculable number of creditors is a very startling one, when it is abruptly and nakedly presented. And it is difficult to imagine so vast an estate in liquidation, or to conjecture to what bankruptcy court the creditors would prove their debts, or who would be the official assignees to collect and distribute the assets.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that the whole world is in pawn, and that its balance sheet shows us an aggregate of liabilities which is absolutely appalling. They have been summed up in The Fortnightly Review by Mr. A. J. Wilson, an experienced writer on financial subjects, and the total is the stupendous sum of £5,894,600,000 an amount which, if represented in sovereigns, it would take a man 172 years to count, at the rate of a sovereign a minute, without a moment's cessation from beginning to end.

To defray the interest on this enormous debt requires £200,000,000 per annum, which Mr. Wilson represents to be fully equal to the entire earnings of 8,000,000 of people; and "did each individual in these 8,000,000 support a family of three persons only beside himself, the interest upon these debts would imply the absorption of the entire support of a population equal to that of the United Kingdom."

Of course, a calculation of this kind takes no account of the debts owing by municipalities, counties, cities, railway, canal, gas, water, insurance and other public companies. But these would assume still vaster proportions, for the capital sunk in railways alone is 4,000,000,000, and this is of course a debt owing to bond and shareholders; while the local debts—state and city—in the United States amount to £175,030,000. The mother country is the greatest pawnbroker in the world, and draws £250,000,000 per annum from the nations and colonies indebted to her.

Mr. Wilson is of opinion that the time has arrived when a stop should be put to this system of mortgaging the future to meet the expenditure of the present, and when England, more particularly, should begin to extinguish her existing liabilities. But his advice is not likely to attract much attention. Nations are just as improvident as individuals, and not one of them has ever been deterred from rushing into a war of ambition or aggrandizement by considerations of the burdens it was entailing on posterity; and the United States is the only one which has taken prompt measures to extricate itself from a national debt.

His Hairpins.

[Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.]

A friend of mine who knows Joaquin Miller gave me a funny description of how he used to go calling with him in Washington. That was before Joaquin cut his hair and then he carried it all carefully fixed up with hairpins. They would reach the house and ring the bell. If the lady were out they would go away. If she were at home Joaquin would take off his hat, carefully take out the hairpins, let the hirsute mass fall over his shoulders and march into the drawing-room with the poetic stride of Walker of Nicaragua.

Philadelphia Call: People with delicate olfactory perceptions may be interested in knowing that as a rule out of 1,000,000 codfish eggs only 100 survive.

Boston Courier: Sugar is selling at 2 cents a pound in many places in Cuba, and the question arises what do the grocers adulterate the sand with?

Minneapolis Journal: Mothers-in-law are usually good, loving and loveable women, whose occasional errors lean to virtue's side, and arise rather from an excess of affections than from its opposite quality.

Every good housekeeper takes down all heavy hangings during the summer. They make a house stuffy and warm, and collect the dust.
